PREFACE

In the intellectual world the compilation of a research bibliography is not generally considered as a scholarly enterprise. In my personal opinion such works are best judged in terms of their usefulness and service to the research scholars who need them. My primary objective in compiling this bibliography is to achieve that goal.

In the past two decades every school, college, research organization and/or agency, and public library has had increasing demand for reference material dealing with the migration of human population. This new and comprehensive bibliography is intended to make the task of selection easier. It contains some 1,000 selected references published chiefly during 1930-1972, including many from the following areas on migration: (1) migration in general, (2) settlement and resettlement of population, (3) temporary movements, (4) refugee problem and migration, (5) rural-urban migration, (6) brain drain and migration, (7) internal migration, and (8) international migration. The references listed in the bibliography are by no means definitive, nor are they meant to be, but they represent many of the old and current publications which may be used as guides for further research that pertain to this subject. The bibliography is divided into ten sections: Section One contains listing of books and monographs, Section Two is a listing of research articles appearing in the journals and periodicals, Section Three contains reports and research reports, Section Four includes proceedings and conferences, Section Five lists research bulletins, Section Six presents research papers published in the area of migration, Section Seven includes sociological, population, economic, and statistical series, Section Eight contains research memoranda, and Section Nine and Ten are listings of Ph.D. dissertations and miscellaneous references respectively.

The main sources of compilation of the bibliography were local, regional, national, and international journals and/or periodicals and books reporting research findings on the subject matter of migration of human population that are indexed in Population Index. The reference listings in each section are arranged by the author in alphabetical order.

A number of persons deserve my thanks for their help with this compilation, without whose cooperation this work would have not been completed. I especially wish to thank my wife, Mrs. Yogesh Sharma, for help in compilation and Mrs. Hershel Marks for typing the manuscript. I would also like to thank Mrs. Mary Vance, editor, Council of Planning Librarians, for her encouragement, editorial assistance, and for the financial assistance from the Council that partially supported the project. The sole responsibility for any errors and/or omissions is mine.

This bibliography will be handy and it is my hope that teachers, researchers, librarians, research organizations, and others needing assistance in this special field will find this guide a useful, informative, and valuable instrument.
